

HOW SWEET IDA RUGGED HER HEN

Aged Henry Cay Sayers Whom Miss Hayes Sued for Breach of Promise, Declares She Likes to Kiss Him, Too.

SAYS "LOVING IDALIAN" KNEW HE WAS MARRIED.

But He Calls Her "Adyline," and Says He Gave Her a Dollar-a-Half the First Time She Spoke of Money.

Everybody in Wayneburg, Pa., knows Henry Clay Sayers, manager of the County Fair, veteran of the civil war, husband, father and grandfather and defendant in the suit for $25,000 damages for alleged breach of promise brought by Miss Idalia Cameron Hayes, which is now on trial before Justice Scott and a jury in the Supreme Court.

Miss Hayes, who had been a student in a dramatic school, told her story yesterday. Mr. Sayers told his story, and he could not have done his "business" with more dramatic effect if he had gone through the course of studies with the fair young plaintiff.

"Everybody up in Wayneburg knows me," he said. "Most everybody there calls me 'Hen.'"

In that bluff fashion he told of his relations with the young plaintiff, and in an inimitable way he related how he "put his hand in her pocket and drew out a dollar 'n-a-half," when she first spoke to him about needing money.

He told all about his trips about the country with the young woman, and related many instances in which he said he had been asked about his wife and family in her presence.

Calls Her Adyline.

In the letters presented in evidence yesterday Sayers addressed Miss Hayes as "dear loving Idalia," but on the witness-stand he called her "Adyline."

When Miss Hayes came to court today her brown cashmere of yesterday had been replaced by one in blue.

When the trial was resumed there were only two witnesses left, Miss Hayes, who admits she is twenty-eight years old, but looks not more than twenty. They were Miss Lillian Rodney and Mrs. Alexander, a sister of Miss Hayes.

Miss Rodney lives at Connelville, Pa., and was associated with Miss Hayes in "demonstrating tea" at the Wayneburg Fair in September, 1937, when Farmer Sayers, one of the directors of the fair, came into her life. They went on the stand and corroborated parts of the story of the plaintiff.

"That's our case," said the attorney for Miss Hayes.

"I move that the complaint be dismissed on the ground that no cause of action has been made out," said Sayers' lawyer.

Two or three jurors snickered as Justice Scott said, laconically, "Motion denied," and Miss Hayes smiled triumphantly.

Aged Defendant on the Stand.

Then Henry Clay Sayers was called to the stand as his own first witness. He held his ear-trumpet hand up to his head while he testified in an easy, off-hand way.

"I am sixty-four years old and have lived all my life in Wayneburg, Pa., where I was born," he said. "I have been married thirty-seven years and have a wife, two sons and a daughter, all living with me in Wayneburg."

Q. Are you pretty well known in Wayneburg? A. Well, I guess everybody knows me. I guess most everybody calls me "Hen."

Q. Are you known in the county, too? A. Well, I've been elected constable of the county, and manager of the county fair.

Getting down to the fair of 1937, the veteran said:

"I had charge of fixing up things. Some one told me there was two women fixin' tea who wanted me. So I went over. They wanted me to fix the tea. I was a-takin' around with them when the other men began to joke at me."

"Captain Packer, he says, 'Here, cult yo' drinkin' there, or he tell.' We'll, er, body had a laugh over it. This young lady she seeing a G. O. R. but she says: 'I see you're an old soldier.'"

"Yes," says I. "I served three years. An' my father is an old soldier, too."

"What so?" says she. "Well, my father's an old soldier, too."

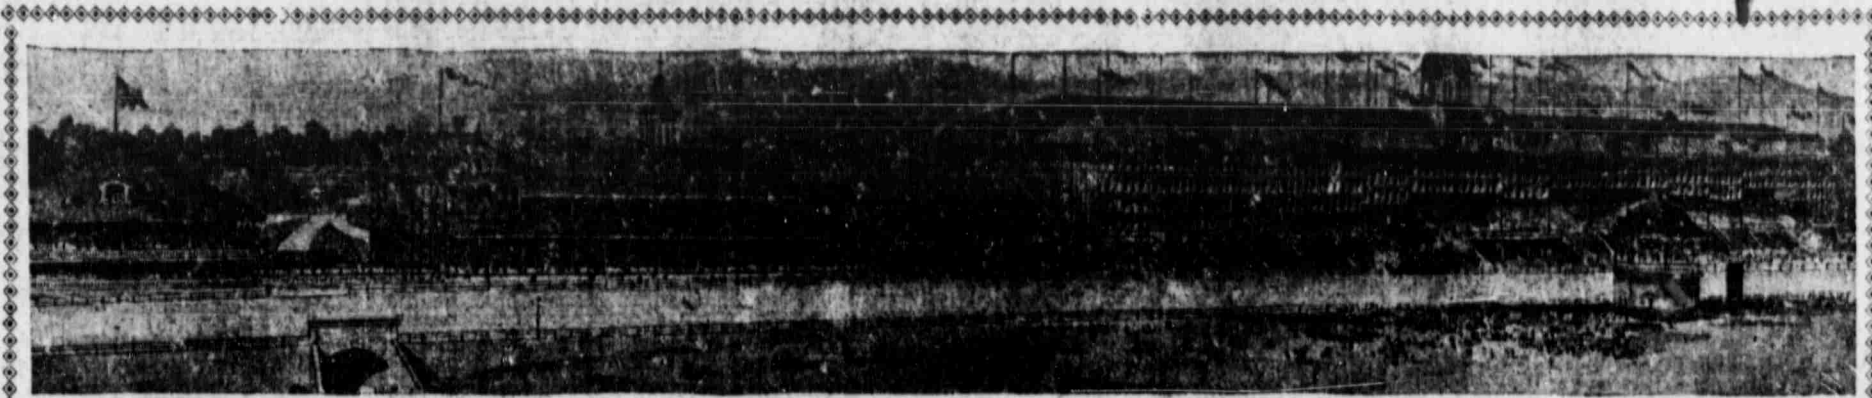

Gave Her a Dollar-a-Half.

"I said I was glad to meet anybody who had folks who were in the army. The next day she says to me, 'Says she: 'Mr. Sayers, I want to go to the fair. I'm a little short of funds to go what to do.' So I put my hand in my pocket and pulled out a dollar-a-half and handed it to her."

The old gentleman suited the action to the word, and the dainty brunette student who is suing him could not have done the "business" better.

Mr. Sayers told of being in Pittsburgh and calling at the home of the Hayes family with a Mr. Smith, and said that after that the little tea demonstrator wrote him several notes, asking him to meet her in Pittsburgh.

BOAT CUT IN TWO, FOUR LIVES LOST

Capt. Walton, Wife and Two Seamen Perish When Schooner Is Run Down by U. S. Supply Steamer Culgoa.

News was brought to New York today of the loss of four lives in a collision between the schooner Wilson and Hunting and the United States supply steamer Culgoa on Wednesday night last.

The schooner was cut in half and sank like a bag of sand. Capt. Walton, his wife and two seamen were lost. Four other members of the crew were dragged down in the section of the foundering boat, but fought their way to the surface and were rescued by boats of the supply steamer.

The collision occurred about ten miles off Barnegat in a thick fog. The sailing vessel, a stanch boat of 34 tons registry, laden deep with plums, was hardly making steeage way when the shrill drone of the Culgoa's siren reached her. The mist was so dense there was no way of making out the position of the steamer, and when she wedged out of the rime Capt. Walton, of the schooner, was powerless to avert a disaster.

The schooner flew amidships, going through her as if she had been cheese. The captain was at the wheel when the crash came and rushed to the cabin to save his wife, at the same time ordering the crew to launch the boats. But before a davit tackle could be cut the sailing vessel fell apart and was swallowed up, all on board being carried down by the suction.

The supply steamer immediately reversed her engines and lowered boats. After groping about in the fog several minutes the boat crews came upon four members of the schooner's crew clinging to plings. All were taken out safely, but no trace was found of the captain, his wife and the two other seamen.

The survivors were not allowed to land when the Culgoa reached quarantine, nor did any of the officers of the supply steamer make any report of the collision until today, when they told the seamen ashore at Tompkinsville.

HOT SPRINGS TRACK SOLD; MUDDERS WIN AT AQUEDUCT

The Owner of Harlem Course Buys Controlling Interest in Oaklawn Jockey from Dan Stuart.

Of interest to Eastern turfmen is the news, which has just leaked out today, that John Condon, owner of the Harlem Race Track, has purchased a controlling interest in the Oaklawn Jockey Club, now being constructed at Hot Springs.

The deal was engineered here in New York. It is believed, by Tim Sullivan, who is also interested in the new track, Mr. Condon bought the stock from D. A. Stuart, the principal owner.

Dealing on a large scale will be conducted at the course this winter. Dates will be given out at the meeting of the Western Jockey Club in December.

The plans of the Oaklawn track, which is more than half built, call for an expenditure of $500,000.

Mr. Condon's first appointment of officials was that of Supt. W. A. Myer, who is widely known through his connection in the same capacity with the Harlem Jockey Club. It is Mr. Condon's intention to transfer to Oaklawn as large a portion of his staff from Harlem as is possible. To that end he has tendered the important position of Secretary to Mr. Nathanson, who has not yet accepted the offer and upon whose decision the selection of other officials will wait.

Tim Sullivan will ship his string of horses down South in a few weeks. Mr. Sullivan has signed Milton Henry, the famous little jockey, to ride for him at the coming meeting. Henry is now resting up and will go to Hot Springs in the best possible condition, and should easily land all the boys riding at the Southern track. Henry is one of the best boys riding today, and next season he will wear the colors of one of the largest stables in the country on the metropolitan tracks.
